Android studio action bar back button fragment. Android studio action bar back button not working.

To rename the line, replace the text with the desired name and touch "OK". You can also use the "Manage Row" dialog box to delete the selected row. When you have more than one line of apps defined and the first line appears, an arrow appears to the right of the app icons in the color specified in the settings. To install Bar Launcher, tap the Play Store icon on the launcher screen. You probably have a ton of useful apps installed and you're running out of room. Once installed, tap "Open" to open the app. The action cannot be undone and the apps you added to the deleted line are not moved to another line. Browse to Bar Launcher in the Play Store and Tap "Install". On the app page, you can also open the app from the Home screen, if it was chosen within the Play Store settings to add the link to the app's home screen or drawer. Tap "Delete" to delete the row. Use the Plus button to add apps, as described above, to the selected line. If you turn off the "Auto-Install" check box, which removes the icon from the status bar. When you have more than two defined app lines and one of the intermediate lines appears, an arrow appears on both sides of the app line that provides access to the previous and subsequent lines. To make it there, tap the Menu button again, and then tap and hold the name of the row you want to rename. After you add a row, the menu becomes available so that you can select a row. Read on to find out how. Note: if you choose to hide the launch bar icon in the status bar, the "A" icon is hidden, but a blank space appears in its place.
